Hi! I’m Jennifer, a graphic designer and artist with over a decade of experience in visual and brand identity design.

I have a wide variety of experience working for clients in entertainment, finance, education, and biotech. Always motivated to look for a deeper truth, I enjoy uncovering the core essence of every project, which then allows for the right expression of their brand.

I want to understand how and why people think and act the way they do and enjoy working in multidisciplinary settings, as it's allowed me to explore and learn about different perspectives. I believe that design is for everyone and that it should speak to people in a way they understand.

By approaching each project with curiosity and empathy, I’m able to create brand identities that feel truthful and stand out.

I am currently the Head of Creative at Invoy. Previously at LRNG, BCG Digital Ventures, PUSH Studios, Maker Studios, and Fisker.

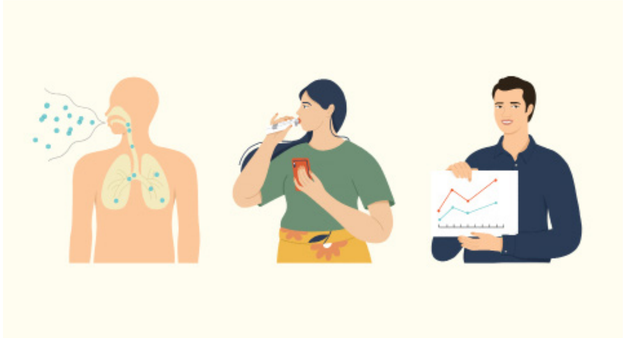
Invoy

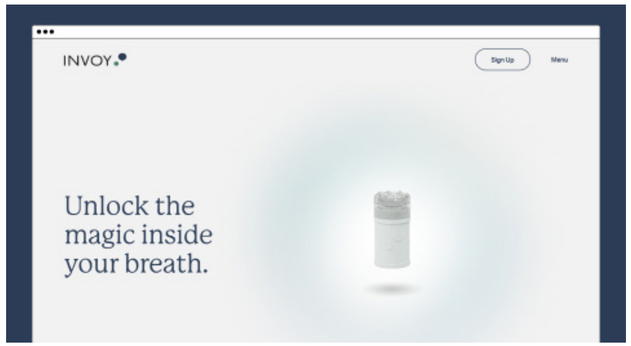
Over a decade ago, Invoy developed a breath device that measures fat burn more accurately and faster than a bathroom scale. This, combined with science-based coaching, has enabled people to make informed health decisions rather than relying on guesswork. Initially utilized to address childhood obesity and assist low-income families lacking proper health education resources, today Invoy continues to use this technology and coaching to support individuals in achieving their health goals.

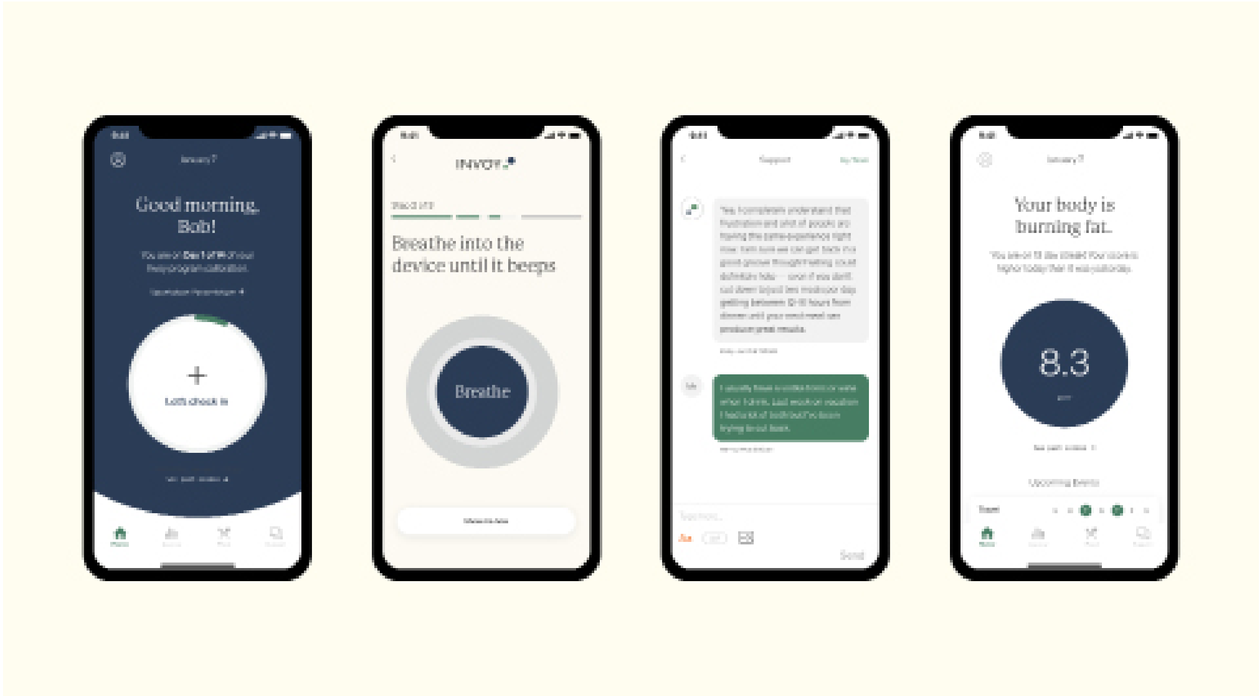
Invoy's breath technology and science were always the company's leading forces, but the look and feel of the brand didn't reflect that. Their goal was to elevate their brand identity to emphasize both reliability and accessibility, as well as attract new talent — from developers to scientists.

As Head of Creative, I oversaw Invoy's visual direction, and was responsible for creating and evolving its brand identity. This included updating the brand across different user touch points including the app, website, all print and digital collateral, and packaging. I managed freelance contractors and vendors to develop a brand library, including illustrations, photography, and web assets to match our new brand standards.

Head of Design: Kevin Bethune
Head of Creative: Jennifer Merrell
Art Director: Jesse Merrell
Lead Designer: Minh Nguyen
Illustrator: Ayumi Takahashi
Developer: Christian Laufenböck
Packaging Design: Winnie Yuen
Photography: Shawn Lowe







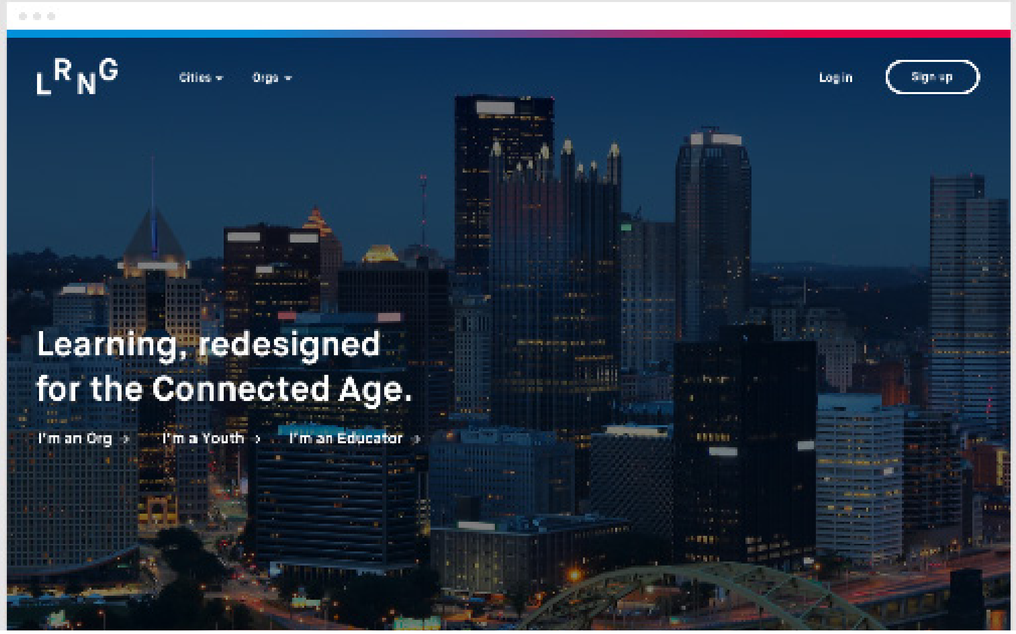
LRNG

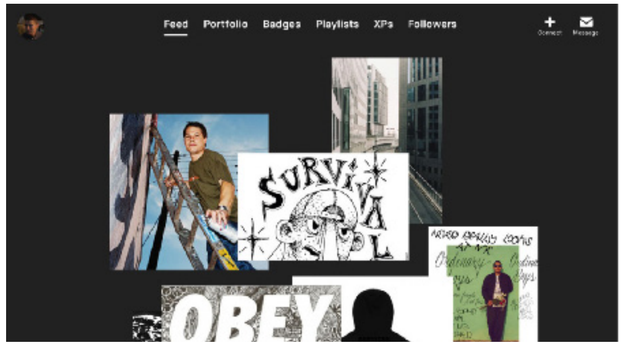
LRNG is a social ecosystem of learning that combines in-school, out-of-school, employer-based and online learning experiences into a seamless network that is open and inviting to all youth.

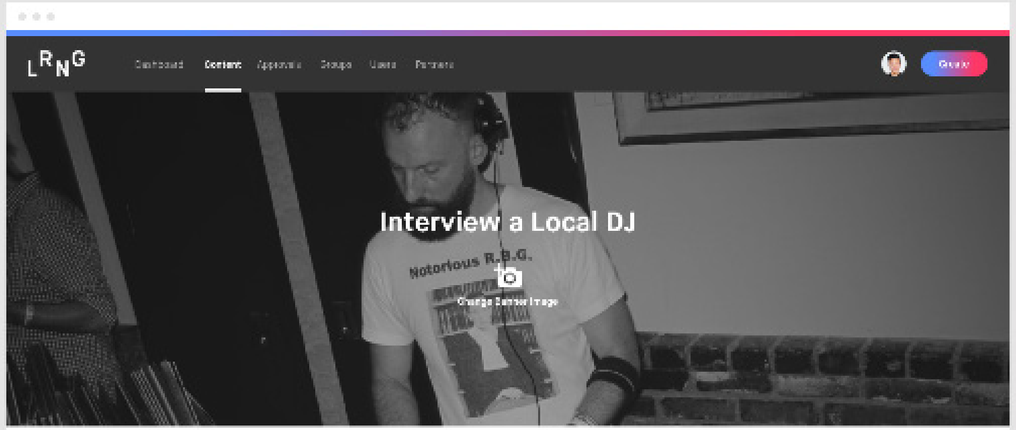
Our aim was to develop and design a connected and scalable technical infrastructure that would empower cities to easily curate, connect, and monitor an ecosystem of ‘experiences where learning happens’ within their communities.

As part of a team of designers and developers, I created LRNG’s public-facing website along with a set of high level features for the internal user platform. Our goal was to make it easier for educators and organizations to create, edit, and approve experiences for youth.

Client: LRNG
Company: Collective Shift
Creative Director: Julia Tsao
Art Director: Buddy Bojorquez
Senior Product Designer: Jennifer Merrell







A Local XP is an in-person activity that invites the learner to participate and explains how to proceed. Create yours below.

Description

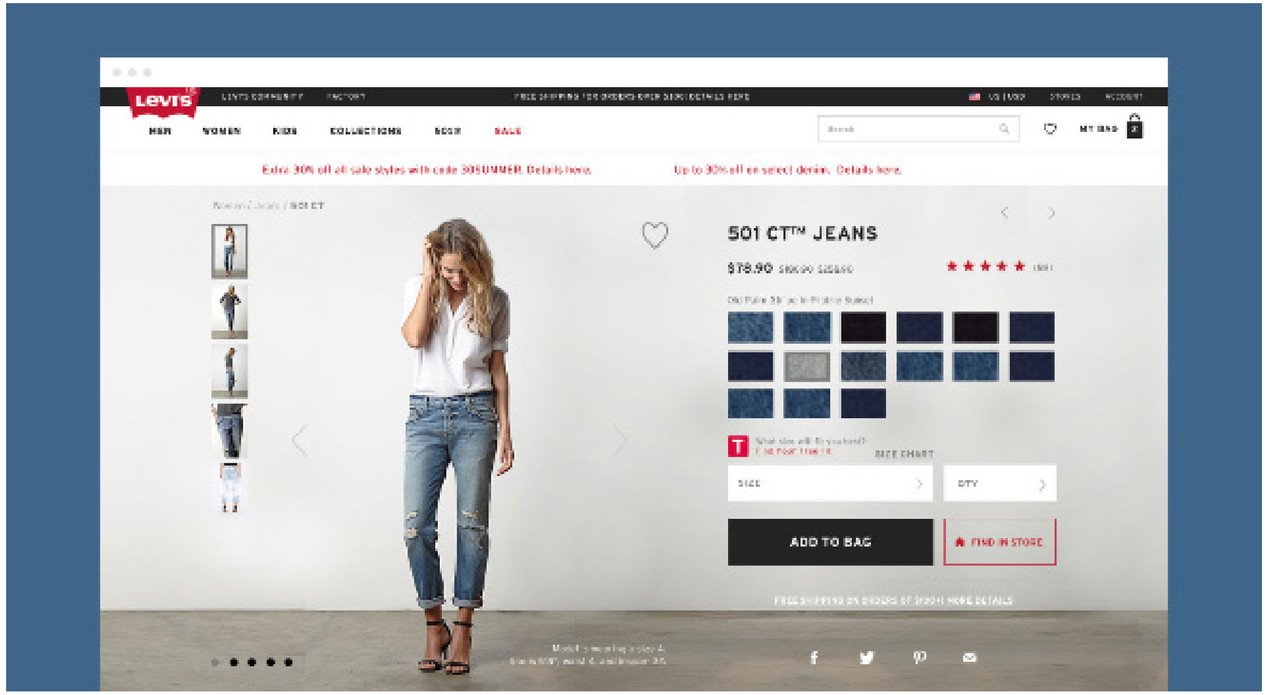
Levis

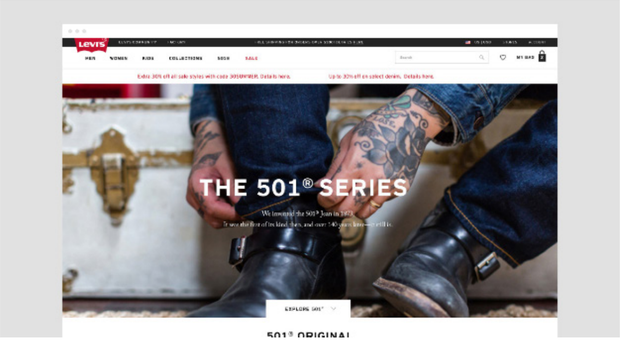
Originally founded in 1853, Levi's (Levi Strauss & Co.) is one of the world's largest apparel companies and a global leader in jeans. With a reputation for being a trendsetter and icon in the world of denim, we wanted to stay true to its roots.

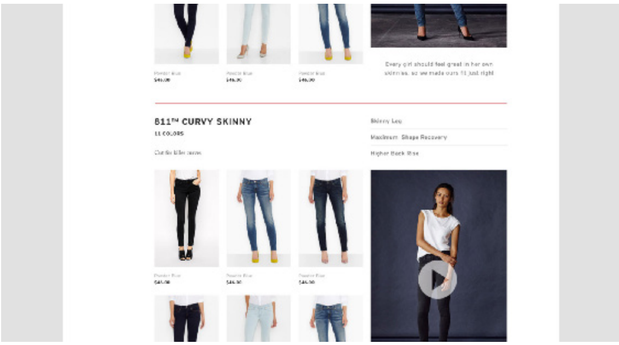
Levi's needed to improve the user experience of their online store. Our BCGDV team provided extensive research for the audience, potential customers, and the denim industry. This research laid the groundwork for creating essential user profiles that shaped the site's overall flow and experience.

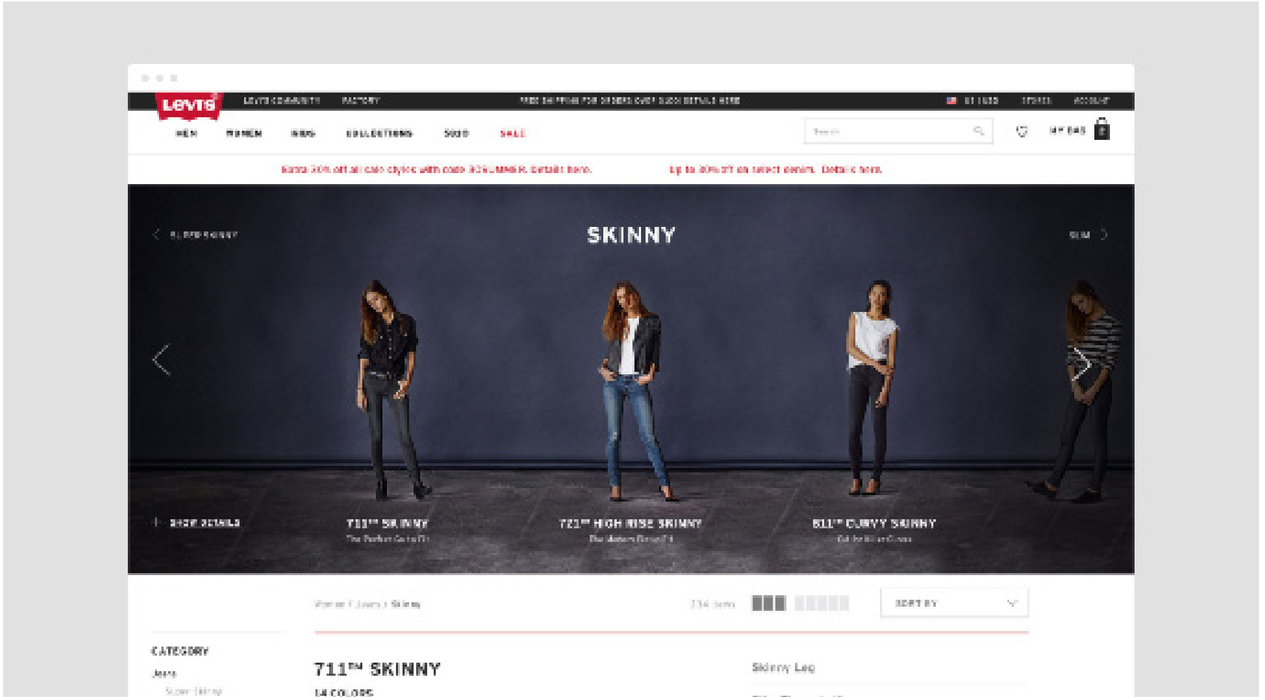
We delved into critical site sections – homepage, department, category, and product pages – deconstructing and testing various user flows to craft wireframes. A/B testing was conducted on proposed UI mock-ups, and customer interviews were conducted with a diverse range of demographics. In my role as UI Designer, I pushed the limits of their brand guidelines to establish new visual aspects in the redesign.

Client: Levi's
Agency: BCG Digital Ventures
Design Director: La Mer Walker
Design Lead: Syuzi Pakchyan
UX Designers: Pamela Abolian and Diane Lui
UI Designer: Jennifer Merrell





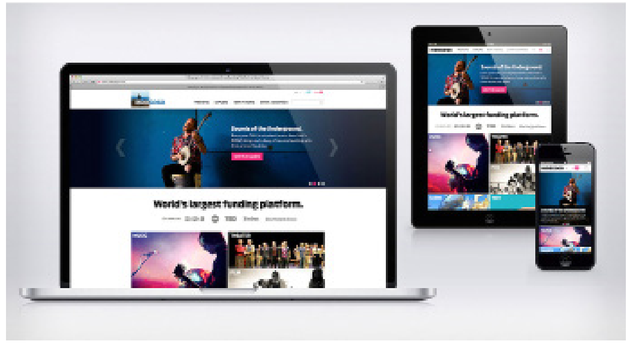




Indiegogo

One of the first sites to offer crowdfunding, Indiegogo has been changing the way ideas and products are funded. I worked with PUSH Offices and Indiegogo to re-design its entire brand identity and create an impactful and flexible identity system.

Client: Indiegogo
Agency: PUSH Offices
Creative Director: Eric Boisvert
Art Director: Brooklyn Brown
Graphic Designer: Jennifer Merrell



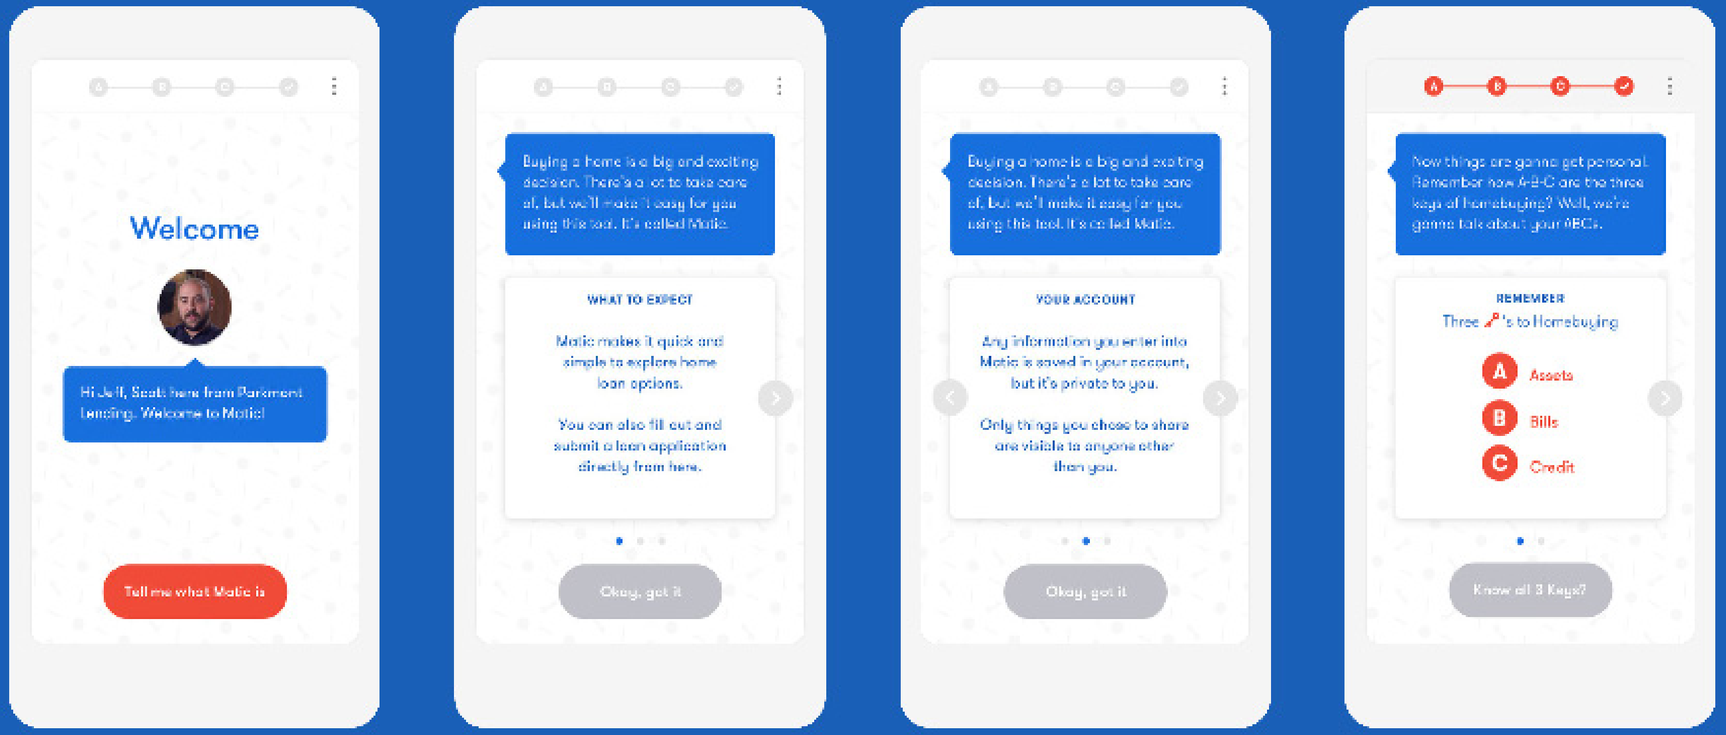
Matic

Matic is a mortgage-based start-up with the goal of making your home-buying experience enjoyable.

The process of buying a home involves a lot of paperwork. Matic wanted to turn the process into something a bit more fun and easy — two feelings people never associate with home-buying.

At HPZ, we created a friendly, fun mobile app experience that empowers and educates customers at the same time. Our research uncovered helpful exemplars that led us to combine the best features of a chatbot (loan officer) and educational flashcards (teaching the ABCs of home buying). Home buyers could submit information without being weighed down by the drudgery of filling out forms.

Agency: High Pressure Zone
Creative Director: JJ Kaye
Chief Strategy Officer: Michelle Priest
UX/UI Designer: Jennifer Merrell



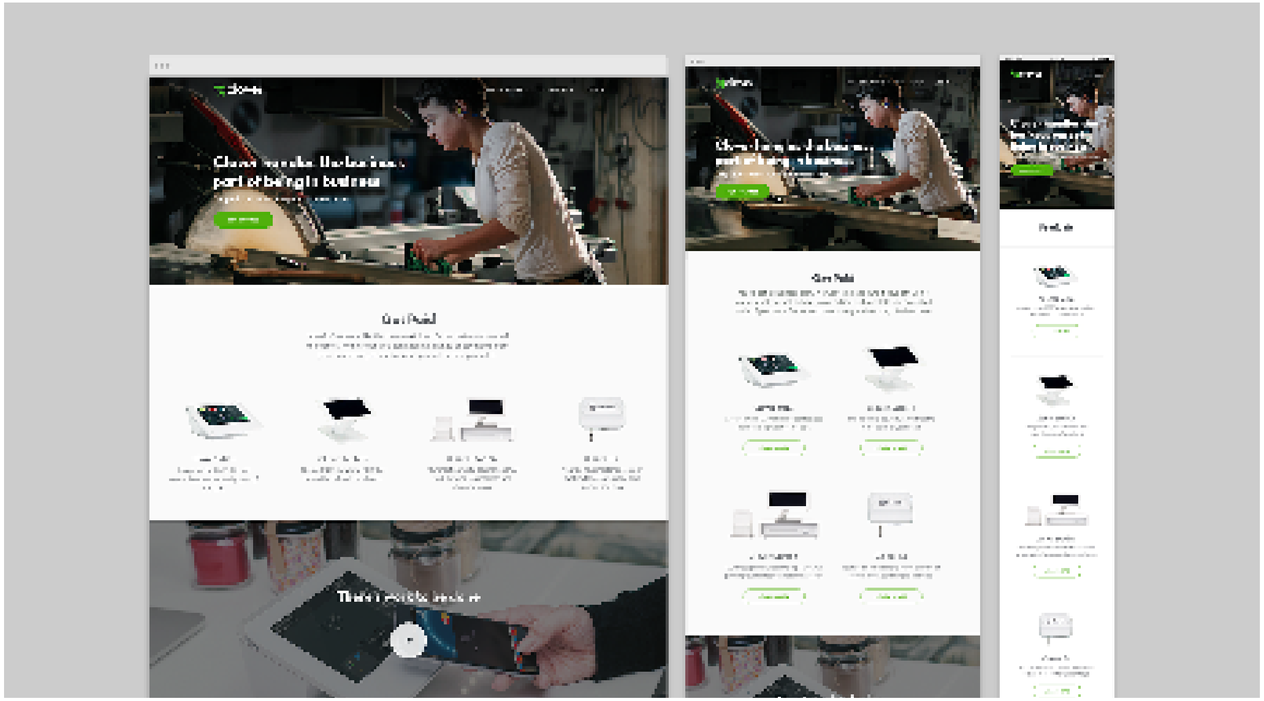
Clover

Clover specializes in cloud-based point of sale solutions and services tailored to small businesses. Launched in 2012, the company processes billions of dollars each year, making it one of the largest U.S cloud POS firms.

Their online presence needed to match their transaction totals, so they reached out to AN Projects for a complete website overhaul.

Under Ahsen's creative direction, we developed the full website UI for desktop, tablet, and mobile platforms. We ensured consistency with their brand guidelines and aesthetics, while adhering to wireframe specifications.

Agency: AN Projects
Creative Director: Ahsen Nadeem
UX/UI Designer: Jennifer Merrell



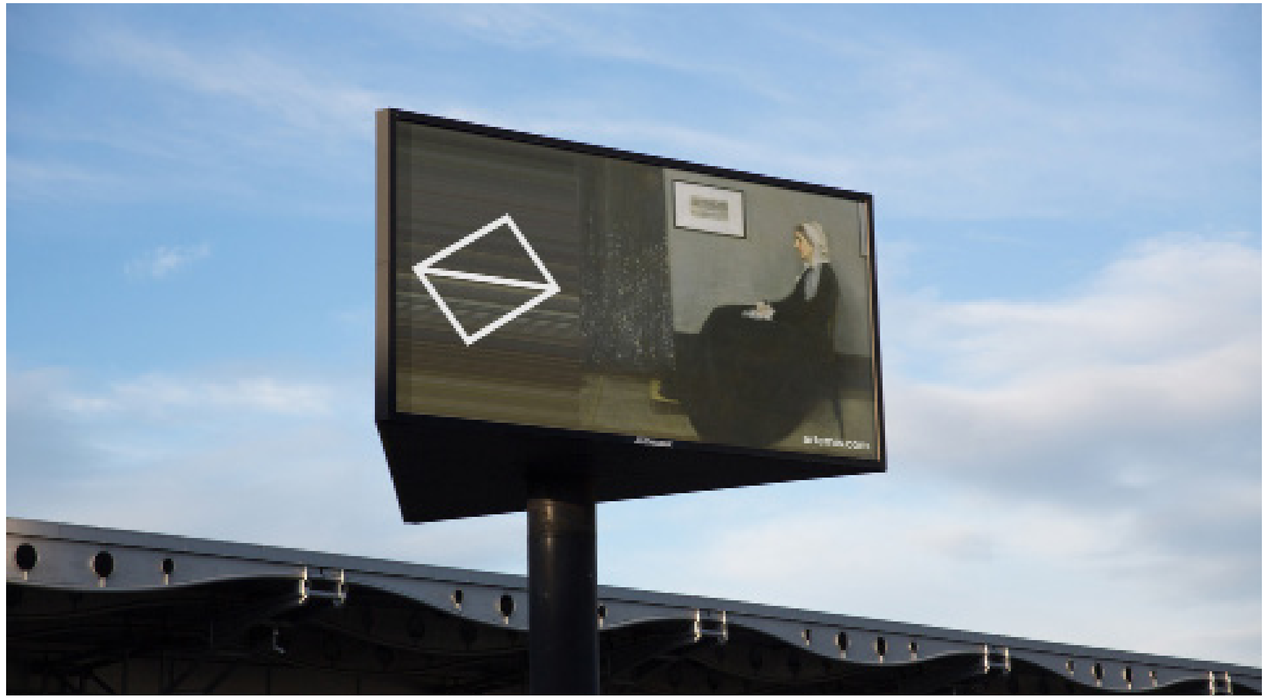
Artemis

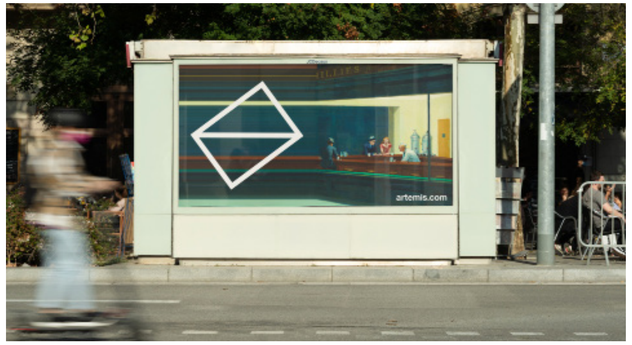
Artemis was born out of the belief that fine art ownership should be accessible to everyone and not just a select few, with cryptocurrency as the perfect avenue to grant this access. The goal was to challenge the art world's status quo and make "Art for Everyone".

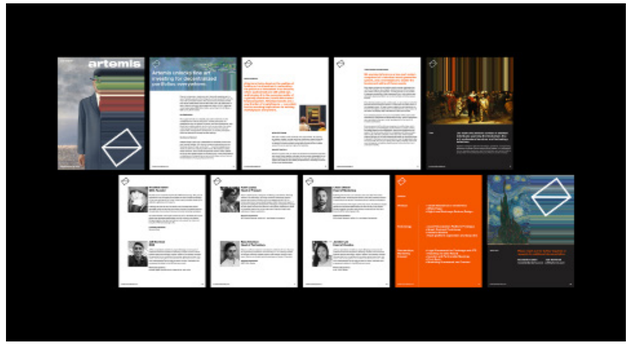
In order to attract funding for this idea, Artemis needed a complete brand identity to make the company stand out to potential investors.

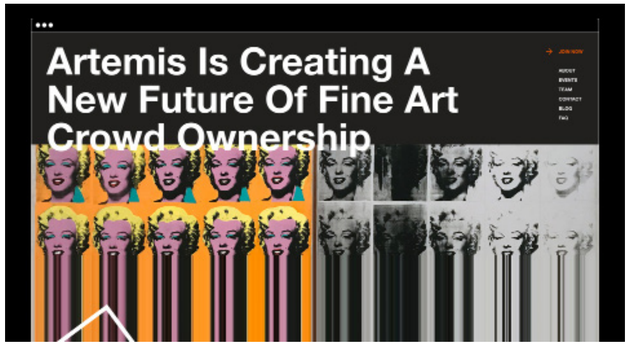
Working within a tight time frame, we explored the concept of disruption — combining famous historical paintings with digital effects. Through multiple design sprints, we delivered a brand kit that could easily be expanded upon as needed.

Creative Director: Jennifer Merrell
Art Director: Jesse Merrell









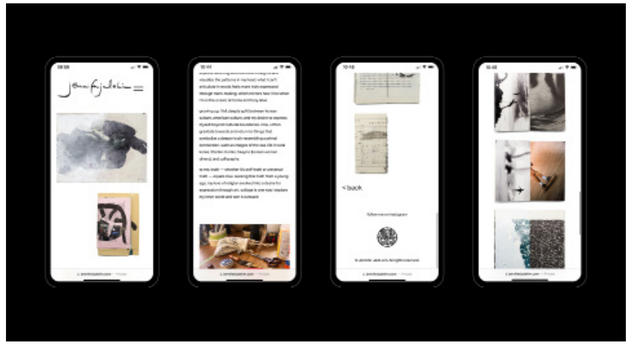
Jennifer Jade Lim

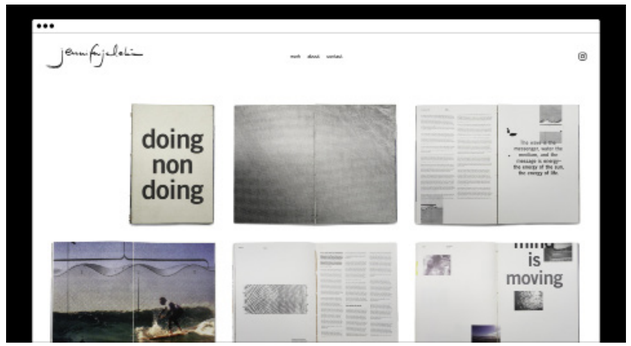
My creative journey is a reflection of my identity as a Korean woman living in America, driven by a deep desire to express myself beyond societal or cultural expectations. My artistic exploration delves into themes that embody a primal connection, including the ocean, spiritual rituals, and mark-making.

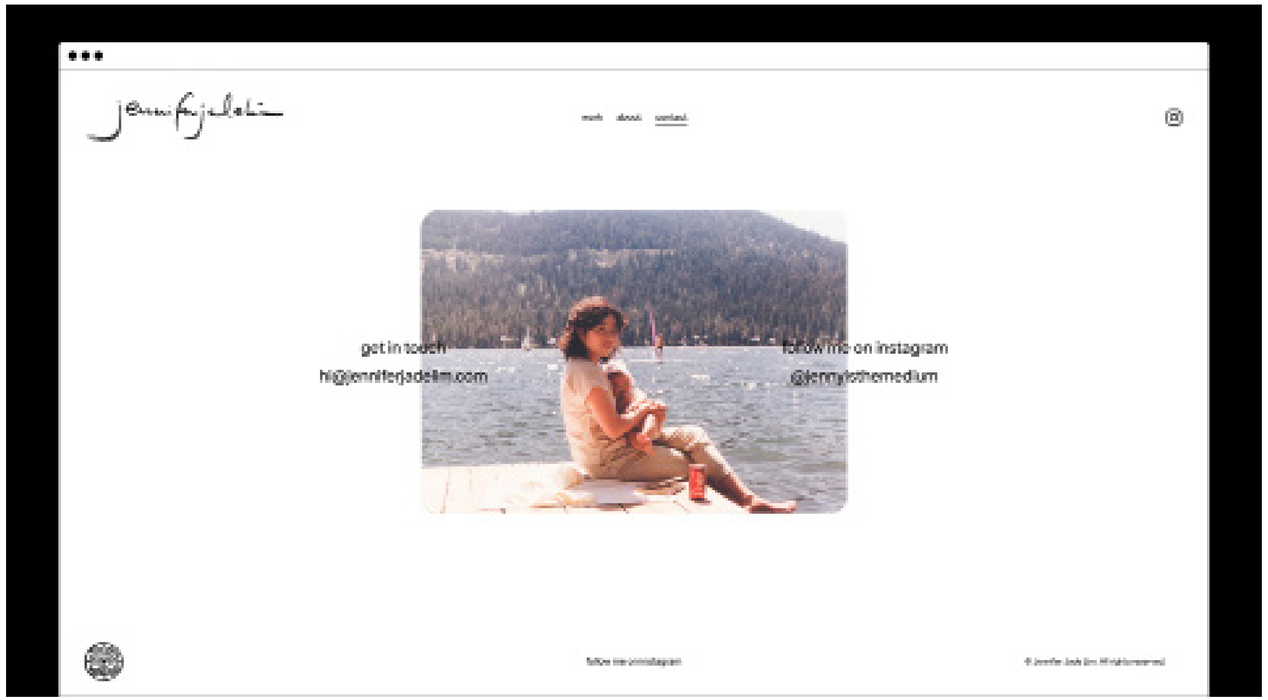
To strike a balance between my design work and personal artistic expression, I've dedicated the past few years to experimenting and creating more intimate pieces. Daily journaling and a conscious commitment to developing new work have become integral to my creative process.

In collaboration with my husband Jesse, we developed a brand strategy rooted in the spontaneity of my mark-making, aiming for authenticity and truthfulness. This resulted in a new brand identity, artist's statement, website, and social media plan, creating a robust platform for me to grow as an artist and connect with fellow creatives.

Creative Directors: Jennifer Merrell and Jesse Merrell
Copywriter: Mari Meyer







Thanks for taking the time to look through.

Let’s talk about your next project!

Email
hi@jenniferjadelim.com

LinkedIn
@jenniferjadelimmerrell

Instagram
@jennyisthemedium